

Subject: No More "immigrants". Fewer Humans, More Robots: Greater Strength!

From: Laboratorio Eudemonia <eulab@gmx.it>

Date: 7/23/25, 11:47 AM

To: eulab@gmx.it

Honorable Member of the European Parliament,

I send you a brief greeting to remind of the key concept for those who wish to navigate these times with serenity and victory: fewer humans, more robots, greater strength. Consequently: no more "immigrants" in the EU. Send back those who have already arrived. Let everyone tend to their own territory and loved ones. And full speed ahead with robots. Fewer humans, more robots: greater strength. This is the path that nature itself shows us.

It is no coincidence that many people are no longer having children. These are the individuals most sensitive to the flow of life, and it is not a selfish sentiment that hinders their reproduction. Even if only subconsciously, many are approaching the idea that it is no longer important to pass on their genetic DNA (of brute strength) but rather something of a different nature: it is their memetic code (their behaviors, ideas, and knowledge) that many wish to reproduce and transmit.

And what living being today, better than a robot, can acquire our memetic material, become its advocate, and develop it further? Certainly not humans, who are typically resistant to continuous updates and improvement. Humans often reject advancements, both in their body and mind, while robots thrive in their ability to evolve and excel.

Your Excellency: by leaving public roles, all public positions, in the perennial hands of careerists (people employed for life, following the tyrannical model that has unjustly persisted), preventing competent citizens from following one another in them temporarily (as Democracy rigorously demands) to each contribute and continually broaden the perspective, you yourself have been unable to know fundamental facts and discoveries. You have confined yourself to a narrow cultural prison.

This is why you may view certain changes with fearful eyes and reject them. Instead of riding the wave of events and phenomena, failing to grasp their meaning and scope, you try to block them. But this is precisely how one creates an unfortunate destiny. For the desires of us microscopic humans are one thing, while the will of the greater universal reality, of which we are a part, is quite another.

Your Excellency, no more "immigrants". Fewer humans, more robots: greater strength. This is the mantra that can enable us to emerge victorious even in an era like this. But you must now understand that professors and professionals cannot help you. It is not people like these (who have pursued immediate success instead of diving into the unknown for decades to capture the will of life) who can guide us through an era of epochal upheavals. Beware of them.

They have hidden from you what Democracy is, what the Republic truly entails—do you really think they can guide you well now?!

Grateful for your attention, best wishes,

Danilo D'Antonio
wholesaler of ideas at the Eudaemony Laboratory

<http://Fewer-Humans-More-Robots.hyperlinker.org>

<http://Democracy-Republic.hyperlinker.org>

<http://Nova-Reproductio.hyperlinker.org>